Where I've had to go through a lot of steps just to get to relevant content. Is there some guide on how the internet should work like news sites. Like Digg for News sites or something similar. So that any one with a computer can go to a site like this and easily get to the content they are trying to get to. ===== byyoung2_ Is there some guide on how the internet should work like news sites_ Check out the Google news guidelines: My Google News posts, and the posts of other newsbloggers, work off of this set of guidelines. If you look at the Google news home page right now, it's almost identical to the newsgrader, our single-page aggregator of Google stories. The same layout, same styles, same way to submit stories, same user experience. Only the names are different. This might be too late to get this in on the home page, but we can be found at ----- alex021 Thanks for your reply @byyoung2 Also if you have any other sites to suggest of similar sites I'd be really appreciative.
