Q: What is the meaning of "see" and "saw"? I am a bit confused of the meaning of these two verbs. For example in the sentence: I see you. It seems the sentence means "I am looking at you" but according to the meaning of "see" in the Oxford dictionary, I think it means "to find out about; to observe". Could anyone confirm this please? A: In this context I think it means (just as the earlier posted definition) "to find out something about someone or something." The definition of "see" in the dictionary gives a clue that it can have another meaning too. see to find out about; to observe I saw the accident I saw her before the accident.

The hiking is mostly through rock outcroppings and over granite outcroppings, so there is a bit of a scramble at certain points. The view from the ridge of the ocean, Mt. Baker and Mt. Baker front ranges is breathtaking and could be enjoyed from either trail. Note: People who do not have local knowledge of the trail can take the main trail, but the trail is not maintained. α' -L-rhamnosidase In enzymology, a α' -L-rhamnosidase () is an enzyme that catalyzes the chemical reaction 2'-alpha-L-rhamnosyl-1,3-beta-D-glucoside + H₂O 2'-alpha-L-rhamnose + beta-D-glucosyl-1,3-beta-D-glucoside Thus, the two substrates of this enzyme are 2'-alpha-L-rhamnosyl-1,3-beta-D-glucoside
